

Rod Stewart and Santana, two of the rock era's biggest hitmakers, are joining forces for an 18-city summer tour dubbed The Voice, The Guitar, The Songs. With a stop at Jones Beach Wednesday August 20.

The double bill teams two of rock history's commercial titans. In a career spanning five decades, Stewart has sold more than 150 million albums worldwide. Last May, he released Time, his first rock album in a dozen years. It followed a successful series of standards collections.

Santana, led by ace guitarist Carlos Santana, has sold more than 100 million records and performed for more than 100 millions fans at concerts across the globe. Santana won a record-tying nine Grammys, including album of the year, for 1999's Supernatural.

Both have staged successful residencies in Las Vegas.
