

HUNTIN' FISHIN' LOVIN' EVERY DAY

Days after wrapping the 2017 Crash My Playa concert vacation in Riviera Maya, Mexico, Luke Bryan announced he will start a new summer tour in May with a stop at Jones Beach on Aug 27. <http://LukeBryan.jonesbeach.com>

The Huntin', Fishin' and Lovin' Every Day Tour kicks off May 5 at Nashville's Bridgestone Arena with Brett Eldredge. Lauren Alaina, Craig Campbell, Adam Craig, Seth Ennis and Granger Smith will open for various dates. This show is also part of the 6 performances (multiple dates) Country MegaTicket. <http://MegaTicket.jonesbeach.com>

Who knew a quick duck hunt could lead to the announcement of a mega-Luke Bryan tour with six different opening acts? Bryan led the way for the announcement with a throwback video for the ages, geared up in his camouflage and war paint. But he didn't head to the great outdoors for his hunt—rather, he turned to his television for a vintage Nintendo session of the country culture video game.

Bryan will perform the National Anthem before kickoff at Super Bowl LI at Houston's NRG Stadium on Feb. 5. The final 16 shows of the Kill the Lights tour starts Feb. 16 in Huntington, West Virginia with Eldredge. Bryan will advise Blake Shelton's team on season 12 of The Voice. His episodes were taped in Los Angeles last week. Shooting to catch killer opening acts instead of birds, Bryan's aim was true when it came to scoring the right lineup for the Huntin', Fishin', & Lovin' Every Day Tour. Booked for the upcoming time on the road includes artists like Brett Eldredge, Lauren Alaina, Adam Craig, Craig Campbell, Granger Smith and Seth Ennis. The "Fast" singer will finish his winter Kill the Lights Tour in March before heading back on the road for the Huntin', Fishin', & Lovin' Every Day Tour on May 5 in Nashville. The tour will run all the way through the summer until the middle of October.
